

Market Update

MARKET ALERTS:

November 8, 2017

Cauliflower: The California crop is nearing the end with Yuma scheduled to start November 20 to 27. Prorates between 30% to 50% are a possibility depending on supplier. Mid mostly price is in the low $30's.

Carrots- The market remains tight and looks to be so for the next 6-7 weeks, expect medium being subbed for Jumbos; and possibly prorates to those orders. Canadian carrots are still expected to end in 3 weeks which will put strain on the product that CA. growers have.

Oranges - Demand is strong, low volume still on packed navels in California; we are about 2 weeks away from having higher supply and decreased prices.

Cantaloupes/Honeydew are tight in Maricopa, AZ. Shippers are still nervous as the white fly problem in the desert cause limited available of melons. Growers are only taking customers that have been on board year round as supplies are really tight until imports start. The markets remain high; Imports are anticipated to arrive in about 2 weeks which will bring relief to the melons.

Lemon- Fruit out of Oxnard is peaking at 165's and smaller. As November is here we should see increase supply in the desert this also will have the smaller fruit with great supply on the fancy fruit. The market continues to be strong. Growers are anticipating high markets, as they have in past years.

Truck Shortages : CO, OR, ID, MN, ND, NE, WA, WI
